

Central finding

The apparent performance of the same clinical AI system depends on who or what is treated as truth.

Shared label and feature sources inflate performance. Relabelling changes apparent performance without changing the model. More noisily labelled data does not correct the problem. Agreement with radiologists does not imply agreement with confirmed diagnosis.